"The dialectics applied to the interpretation and solution of social phenomena are achieved only by political methodization based on the application of statistics of known facts investigated at their origins. The west coast of South America is of great strategic importance in the struggle of the united proletariat against international capitalism which has its nucleus in the United States, from which are extended its tentacles which strangle the great dispossessed masses in order to benefit a reduced number of privileged individuals who hold the world in a state of servitude. Opposing capitalism is Russia on the other side of the Pacific Ocean, which will be the field of aggression of capitalism against the democracy of the liberated peoples. The United States has lost its colonial sources of supply which it used to have in Asia and it can now extract raw materials only from the South American republics which are held under its suction-like hegemony by means of fascist governments (which are) subject to an international directorate. Nevertheless, the populations of these countries are temperamentally conscious of their significance and will oppose the war of imperialist aggression by contributing an effort to weaken and finish the struggle which has as its sole purpose the maintenance of a preponderant capitalism which subjugates and vilifies. The only Latin American country which has been able partially to separate itself from the dictates of the U. S. State Department is Ecuador, and this is only because of the influence of the working class which has been able to prevent the unconditional delivery of the country to the Yankees in spite of the efforts of the present regime whose pretensions should be completely annulled. Ecuador is the last bulwark in the struggle and it must not be lost because from Ecuador will be initiated the recovery of the Pacific coast. The defense must be systematic and must take advantage of the errors of the past, for enthusiasm alone is not sufficient without the realistic foundation which is obtained from a thorough understanding of social factors. It is necessary to take a careful census in the zones of industrial and agricultural production, establishing the number of workers and determining which elements in each group will be ready to assume command of the anti-imperialist campaign at any given moment. You should also make a list of all the persons who figure in the political life of the country, establishing their tendencies, past and present activities, the possibility of their being used, and the necessity of disregarding those who are against the proletariat cause. These projects should be finished within one month without delay. In totalitarian countries such as Colombia, Peru, and Chile, where there is a definite lack of freedom, the census is now almost finished, and this should serve as a stimulant for Ecuador not to lose ground for it is an integral part of the over-all scheme from whence directives are issued. As a complimentary project you should prepare organized combat forces among the Communist youth, not leaving it to chance, for the work must be efficient and can control extensive areas with limited technical support. The combat forces must receive intensified military instruction in order that they may be well prepared within a very short time. Instructions and equipment will be forthcoming from Quito. For the defense of the universal proletariat!"
